

Pooled Tobacco Brings Top Price

The report of Commissioner of Agriculture W. C. Hanna shows that the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association obtained higher prices for its tobacco than owners who sold burley tobacco independently. The report covered sales up to March 1, about the time independent loose leaf house closed. For 20, 675,455 pounds of pooled tobacco $5,995,951.54 was obtained, an average of $29 a hundred pounds. Independent figures were $10,588,579.16 for 49,837,048 pounds, or an average of $21.24.

Mr. Hanna said that approximately 40,000,000 pounds of the association tobacco has been sold since March 1 at prices "well above" those who sold independently. His reports in the future will not include tobacco sold by the association, it was said, because it is not sold at auction.

Fight Launched On Tax Commission

"To curb, if possible, the arbitrary increases levied by the state tax commission," seven county judges and other officials met yesterday in the office of County Judge Doak at Lexington and following a conference lasting several hours decided to unite against the commission in a test of the commission's authority taking the fight to the courts if necessary.

Six counties were represented in addition to Fayette, all being from Central Kentucky, where, it is alleged, the "arbitrary" position of the tax commission has been felt most keenly.

All of the officials at the meeting yesterday voted to resist the commission in a legal fight if this becomes necessary, oppose vigorously the action of the commission in ordering the county judges to reconvene their boards of tax supervisors and increase the county valuations to conform with the figures fixed by the commission.

In addition to County Judge E. H. Doak, who presided, county judges present were: J. D. Goodloe, of Madison county; J. B. Ward, of Scott county; R. S. Scobee, of Clark county; E. T. Pollard, of Shelby county; G. M. Treadway, of Garrard county, and M. C. Minor, of Boyle county. J. P. Chenault, county attorney of Madison county, acted as secretary.

Following the meeting it was announced that at least fifteen other county judges had indicated their intention of joining in the fight against the tax commission. These judges are expected to attend another meeting to be held within the next ten days.

A statement issued by the judges following the conference said in part: "After full discussion of the individual situations in respective counties it was the consensus of opinion of all present that the interests of the public generally demands that steps be taken to curb, if possible, the increasing and arbitrary increases levied by the state tax commission."

MONEY ILLEGALLY SPENT BY SCHOOL BOARDS, COLVIN SAYS

Inspections of county board offices by the department of education have brought to light the illegal expenditure of money, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction George Colvin, who addressed communications to members and officials of the county boards of education urging immediate correction of these conditions.

Section 5 of the county board law provides that the county board shall have control of the county school property, and of the county school fund. This section, Superintendent Colvin says, further provides every reasonable check to protect the children and the taxpayers against irregular expenditure in that it forbids any payment of claims except by the board in session. He urges that the law be complied with to the letter.

MRS. WILL ED JONES HURT

Mrs. Wilmot Prewitt while driving on the Paris pike yesterday in some manner lost control of her car and ran into a fence. While Mrs. Prewitt was backing out her car, Mrs. Will Ed Jones, who was with her, got out of the machine with Mrs. Prewitt's young son and was sitting on the bank at the side of the road waiting for the car to be adjusted, when two men, driving at a rapid rate of speed, rounded the curve and ran over Mrs. Jones, spraining both her ankles. The child was not hurt, owing to Mrs. Jones' presence of mind in throwing him to the top of the bank when she saw the car approaching. The two men, who are said to have been under the influence of whisky, are thought to be from North Middletown. After the accident they speeded up their car and got away as quickly as possible, offering no assistance whatever.

Paris will be the attraction at Fair Grounds Park Sunday afternoon and as the local team has been materially strengthened within the past few weeks, it is expected our losing streak will soon be broken. The lineup which will be sent against Paris on Sunday will be a strong one and Manager Ellis has hopes of taking the Bourbon county outfit into camp. The local club is playing at Lexington this afternoon.

MANY SHEEP FLOCKS HIT BY TICKS, LICE OR SCAB

Few Kentucky flocks of sheep have come through the winter without being troubled with ticks, lice or scab. L. J. Horlacher, in charge of sheep work at the College of Agriculture, says. Dipping, therefore, will be necessary this spring on many farms of the state to control these pests, he said.

"Trials at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station show that ticks and lice can be controlled effectively by use of any of the standard commercial coal tar or sheep dips, but that a tobacco dip is best for scab. The animals should be dipped immediately after shearing and then again in ten or twelve days. This second dipping kills all parasites which have hatched since the time of the first dipping. Directions given by manufacturers of the dips should be followed closely if best results are obtained. This is particularly true when a tobacco dip is used. A solution that is too strong acts as a poison and may kill the animal. Also, a sheep that is allowed to remain in the dip too long may be poisoned."

LISTEN IN!

Radio amateurs all over the country report blown-out fuses as the result of attempting to duplicate General Squier's feat of plugging in a radio receiver on the electric light circuit. The trouble is the sets are not made to take such voltage. General Squier knew what he was doing when he made the test, and prepared for it. Those who emulate him are working under different conditions, and are likely to encounter unpleasant results. The experiment is not recommended in the ordinary home and with the ordinary set.

Predictions that the sale of parts would fall off as the public took up radio and only complete sets desired, does not seem to be borne out by the reports of dealers. Apparently the broadcasting craze caused several regiments of the experimentally inclined to join the amateur army.

With its characteristic promptness American business has been quick to seize on the advantages offered by radio broadcasting. All over the country department stores are planning to erect stations, if possible to help them in the problems of advertising and selling. They expect to beat the mail order man at his own game and gather in trade from the smaller centers. This means that the small town merchant must rely more than ever on his home town newspaper and put some pep into his public appeal.

However, quite apart from the retailer's point of view, which must inevitably be influenced largely by considerations of publicity quite as much as business, certain trade organizations are using or planning to use the radio to disseminate information in the same manner as the Chicago board of trade is now sending out crop reports to the farmers.

As a consequence, there is now going out regularly a broadcast among members of the silk trade, giving quotations and other up to the minute market information. Several other lines are using this method with more or less regularity. And the department of commerce is assisting by broadcasting cabled information from abroad to those interested, as for instance, a report of automobile conditions from South America to automobile manufacturers in the United States.

EMPLOYMENT FOR MILLIONS FROM PULVERIZED MOUNTAINS

Building Stimulates Local Prosperity — Materials Plentiful and Prices Down

Next to farming, local prosperity depends upon building activity. The reason is plain. Building is the country's second largest industry. It employs millions of workers directly, millions to make the materials for building, and hundreds of thousands in lumbering, quarrying and mining.

Everyone knows that a building shortage exists. One way to restore prosperity then, is by a lively resumption of building. Materials and labor now are plentiful. Costs are lower. Cement will serve as a good example because it goes into nearly all building.

For every ton of cement, 1½ tons of raw materials and coal must be mined, shipped, assembled, dried, ground, weighed, mixed and then fused at about 3,000 degrees to a hard "clinker." This "clinker" must then be ground again, this time to a powder so fine that 75% will pass through a sieve having 40,000 holes per square inch. To make cement, one literally must "tear down a mountain and put it through a sieve." And yet, cement sells at the mill for about $3.00 per ton! These facts caused the United States Geological Survey a few years ago to say that "one could not scrape the free sand from the gutter for much less cost per barrel."

Cement Competition Keen. That competition has been active is noted in government reports. According to the United States Geological Survey, the production of cement has steadily increased and the price declined. It shows that in 1880, cement sold at $3.00 a barrel average at the mill; in 1920 at $2.02; in 1921, at $1.87. Now it is selling at many large plants as low as $1.50 a barrel, only half the average price in 1880, and less than the average for the 40-year period covered in the government report.

At one of the country's largest cement plants the price now is 48½% higher than in the pre-war year 1913. The latest report of the United States Department of Labor shows the average price of "all commodities" as 51% higher than 1913. Some of the items whose prices enter into this figure of 51% have undergone radical decreases, while others are very much higher than the average of 51%. Few, if any, items of the former class enter into cement manufacturing costs, but several items of the latter class do affect the cement costs. In fact, the principal elements in these costs are labor, freight rates, coal and limestone.

In February, 1922, the cement plant referred to paid for its coal at mines 203% more than in 1913, for limestone at quarries 60% more and for labor 54% more. Freight rate on coal was 107% greater and on limestone 52% greater. A comparison of these increases with the increase of 48½% in cement price and 51% in the price of "all commodities" is enlightening.

Cement is so widely used that users themselves have standardized it. Today every cement maker, regardless of his brand, meets the specifications set jointly by the United States government and the country's leading engineering societies. All brands of cement, therefore, are alike.

Jevon's Economic Law.

Because of this, the prices of various brands of cement in any given market usually are the same. The reason for this puzzles many. But the answer is simple and well stated by W. Stanley Jevons, L. L. D., M. A., F. R. S., in his standard work "The Theory of Political Economy," which says:

"If in selling a quantity of perfectly equal and uniform barrels of flour, a merchant arbitrarily fixed different prices on them, a purchaser would, of course, select the cheaper ones. Hence follows what is undoubtedly true * * * that in the same open market, at any one moment, there cannot be two prices for the same article."

Applying Jevon's economic law, a simple illustration of cement competition may be cited thus: A, B and C are cement makers. Each seeks business at M, a town with a 30-cent freight rate from A, 35 cents from B and 40 cents from C. This gives A a 5-cent advantage over B and 10 cents over C. A figures he can sell at, say, a mill price of $1.50, so adds the 30 cents freight and quotes $1.80 at M. Then if B and C want to do business at M they must meet A's price, requiring B to go 5 cents below A in his mill price and C to go 10 cents below A in his mill price. Unless B and C can make the mill price sacrifices required by the market at M as made by A's $1.80 price, then A will monopolize the market at M.

Similar principles apply to other materials. Prices are not arbitrarily made. They are based upon supply and demand and upon the cost of transportation, raw materials and labor. Supply of labor and materials how is plentiful. We cannot afford longer to delay needed building improvements. This is particularly true because building is so entwined with the nation's prosperity that a full revival of building will hasten a revival of other lines of business.

The cast required some difficult work, but was successfully carried through by all taking part. Miss Daisy Rose was indeed kept busy as Mrs. Tubbs, as at her house something was stirring all the while. She was at all times equal to meet the demands of the occasion. Miss Elizabeth Davis as Miss Clingie Vine surely can keep folks smiling out loud when it comes to a courting scene, and later, when fortune smiled on her, she was able to shine in a new role. Miss Gola Chase as the pretty young school teacher carried her part very beautifully at all times. Miss Mary Deatly as the neighborhood gossip was certainly "dolled up" in an antique attire sufficient to satisfy the most critical. As for us, we much prefer modern measures. Master Klamath Keith was a hit each time in contact. For a more extended description I leave to another.

SEASONAL GARDEN TIPS

As soon as the cutting season is over for asparagus, cultivation should be started and continued as long as there is no danger of breaking off the tops. In the fall, the tops should be cut and burned.

In order to have plants for transplanting about the last of July, it is necessary to have late cabbage seed sown by June 1. Flat Dutch, Louisville Drumhead and Succession are good late varieties, according to gardeners at the College of Agriculture. Late plants should be set about two feet apart in rows that are from two to three feet apart, depending upon the kind of cultivation that is to be practiced. Horse cultivation requires that the plants be set about three feet apart.

Sweet potatoes can be set in the field almost any time after May 15. The plants are set about fifteen inches apart on ridges that are from three and one-half to four feet apart. This crop requires from 150 to 170 days in which to mature.

Failure to set the plants deep enough is a common mistake made in transplanting tomatoes to the field. It does no harm to pull off a few of the lower leaves and set the plants as much as five inches apart. This places the roots in soil containing more moisture than that found near the surface and thereby increases the bearing season of the plants.

By planting the seed about May 15, it is possible to have celery plants to set out about July 1. Since the seed is slow to germinate, it is best to plant it only on soil that is in good condition and barely cover it with soil. It is a good idea to cover the box with cheesecloth until after germination takes place, care being taken to see that the seeds have plenty of ventilation and water whenever needed.

PPOISON EFFECTIVE AGAINST POISON EFFECTIVE AGAINST

After various experiments the United States department of agriculture believes that carbon bisulphide properly applied once will destroy from 90 to 100 per cent of the land crabs which have been a discouraging pest to Florida farmers near Palm Beach to Cape Sable along the Atlantic coast and adjoining keys. It is expected that an anti-crab campaign, proposed for next December, when tomato planting is begun, will meet with enthusiastic co-operation on the part of landowners and farmers.

Land crabs infest low flat lands where the water level is from one to four feet below the surface during the dry season. From 1,000 to 20,000 crab holes to the acres have been found in this region. Winter truck crops and tomatoes are severely damaged by the crabs, which seem to be increasing in number. They devour and injure all kinds of young and tender vegetation, which they nip off and carry to their holes.

PUT AN END TO THE DRIVES

While all this talk of readjustment is in the air it might be well for the ordinary people, those who come in contact only with the ordinary things of life from day to day, to readjust their common sense and put a stop to the continuous exploitation they suffer from a result of the money raising fever. The readjustment of the "drives" certainly is in order. People are asked to contribute almost weekly for everything from the Society for the Protection of Spained Horses to the Benighted Weeping Babies of the Choctaw-kongs of Passamaquaddy. The drain on the average purse for this sort of silly charity is tremendous. Sacrifice and helpfulness are well enough in their way, but imposition should be checked. There are all sorts of stories recording the number of persons out of work to be read in the newspapers, yet try to find anyone who wants to do any work and you have a job on your hands. Every city tells the same story—park benches filled with idle men and the suburban newspapers filled with advertisements for men wanted for work in gardens and about homes, with no men to be found. The farms are pretty much in the same condition. True, the city nondescript is not of much value on a farm, even so, but there are plenty of good homes awaiting men who are willing to work and willing to learn. Woman labor is in the same condition. Help—we no longer dare call them servant girls—is impossible to obtain at any price. In the meantime the drives go on. Many of them are operated on a fifty-fifty basis, the collectors getting as much as the cause and sometimes more, and the public is mulcted to the limit of its foolishness. Draw down the curtain on the drives. We've had enough of them.

WHY NOT REQUIREMENTS OF CONGRESS?

Before a young man is permitted to begin the study of medicine, the law, the church, or in fact, most of the other professions, he must pass an examination to prove himself possessed of certain educational requirements regarded as a necessary basis of his practice in the event of his entering actively into the calling of his choice. This is wise, but it would be wiser if those who seek to enter the most important, the most difficult of all professions, the profession of government, had to have a basic knowledge before they were eligible to run for public office, particularly of a legislative nature. Every man who wants to run for congress, for example, should be compelled to have as a background either four years of experience on a farm or a thorough course in some agricultural college. The man from the city without a knowledge of farming is unfit to legislate for the American people. The excuse offered is that he represents the territory and the people that elect him, but as a fact, he cannot represent any section efficiently unless he knows the farmer's problems. He must vote on tariff measures, on agricultural legislation, on measures that have almost a direct bearing on all classes of our citizenship, urban, suburban and rural, and he does so, as matters stand, with nothing to guide his action but a certain amount of horse sense. Horse sense is well in its way, but we have too much of this horse legislation. A river cannot rise higher than its source and legislative enactments never will rise above the intelligent knowledge that lies behind their enactment. Let us have some standard of requirement before a man is eligible to run for the state legislature and for congress.

"DECEPTION" IS A DAZZLING PAGEANT

Filled with scenes of great beauty from start to finish—views that visualize the England of King Henry VIII's time, "Deception," a magnificent Paramount picture, which will be shown at the Tabb Theatre Monday next, is a gorgeous historical pageant, supplemented by a love story whose appeal no modern picture audience can ignore.

Anne Boleyn, the central figure of this remarkable love drama, won a throne through her beauty, but the victim of deception, slander and treachery, she falls into an abyss, filled with terrors which only her mother love enable her to endure with fortitude.

The massive scenes unfolded in the picture amaze spectators by their massiveness and fidelity to the most minute historical detail. They constitute a dazzling pageant of rare value to the student of history as represented in the motion picture art, second to none hitherto presented to the American public. Henry Porten and Emil Jannings, famous screen artists of Europe, play the leading roles.

DIG INTO THE OIL ROMANCES

If there is to be a real investigation of the leasing of the naval oil reserves after Secretary Fall conducted secret negotiations with the Sinclair oil interests for the exploitation of the Teapot Dome field, the disclosures are likely to prove interesting. The Sinclair interests appear to be perfectly frank in their explanations, but the government is peculiarly reticent and seemingly in conflict with some statements that have been made. A complete airing of the spectacular achievements of the Sinclair Oil Company undoubtedly would be an inspiration to the youth of the country, which feels to some extent that present day opportunities are not those of the "old days." The romance of millions that could be unfolded in all probability would put fiction in the shade. From an interesting beginning, the Sinclair Oil Company has mounted the ladder until it has gone so far as to fix the prices for the Standard Oil Company, while its enterprising president has experienced a life not less filled with interesting incidents than that of the elder Rockefeller. So far as the government deal is concerned Wall street appears to have had a knowledge of the proposition before the public had any inkling of it, so there was no opportunity for the public to express its views or to point out any weak spot if it existed. Congress knew as little as the public, so that the principle of the "public be damned" seems to have operated throughout the transaction. A little light now, even though late, will do no harm.

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922

How we would value a friend who was all goodness, all self sacrifice, all kindness, all forgiveness, always ready to help us and powerful enough to do it—the chap who stands by in the storm and who never deserts. If we threw down a pal of this kind I suppose we'd be thought crazy, and yet—we go to church on Sunday, pretend to believe these things about man's only lasting friend, the Great Creator, we put a quarter in the plate and then say, "see you next week."

Mrs. White Honored

The Exponent, Umatilla, Fla., had the following notice of a farewell party given at Umatilla as a compliment to Mrs. A. B. White, of this city, just before she started on her return trip to her home:

"One of the season's prettiest parties was given by Mrs. C. Talton Embry, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. N. A. Moore, at their lovely home on South Central avenue complimentary to Mrs. A. B. White, sister of Mrs. Embry, who was leaving for her home in Mt. Sterling, Ky. A profusion of flowers was used, pink and white being the color scheme. Delicious refreshments of ice cream and cake were served on beautifully decorated plates with coral vine and lace fern. This "souvenir" party was unique in the respect that each guest was asked to bring material for a souvenir which was to be made during the hours of 3 to 6. When the articles were finished to the surprise of Mrs. White, they were presented to her with an original verse that afforded much laughter and also proved the talent of Umatilla. The afternoon was much enjoyed and all expressed regrets that Mrs. White was leaving so soon."

GOOD ROADS

With machinery constructed for carryin' heavy loads, it springs the proposition of securin' better roads. Where once we follered byways, as we driv the frisky shote—or poked along the highways that would stall a mountain goat—we now encounter road hogs in their mighty souper-eight, or run across the flivver with its precious human freight.

In these strenuous day of "Git-there" we have got to have the track—when half the people's goin' out, and half a-comin' back. When Gran-ny and the children get the taste for higher speed, I reckon that a better road's the everlastin' need. So the legislatur' socks a bigger license on your boat—while the tight-wad uses language that I wouldn't keer to quote.

Then resurrect yer shovel and yer scraper, and yer hoe—and don't be pessimistic when you're partin' with your dough. Remember we're livin' through a mighty restless hour when rapid transportation is the centerpiece of power! There's no excuse fer terapis, or lazy-minded toads, when progress blows her whistle in the call for better roads.

KEITH VAUDEVILLE AND "DECEPTION"

It is with pleasure that we call attention to the Tabb Theatre's ad in this issue for next Monday, May 22.

With the announcement of the big time vaudeville act, Earl Fuller and his jazz orchestra, featuring the prima donna of syncopation, Miss Vi Shaffer, and the great historical feature photoplay, "Deception," with 7,000 people in the cast, it seems to us that the Tabb Theatre has completely outdone all previous records in announcing these two special attractions on the same date at popular picture show prices.

We have no doubt but this announcement will create more interest with every man, woman and child in Mt. Sterling than any attraction yet offered this season.

The Advocate feels that it is no small honor for the Tabb to be able to offer an organization direct from Rector's of New York City and billed as a Keith headline vaudeville act. Earl Fuller and his orchestra of artists themselves are proving a sensation wherever they are appearing this season and most theatre managers would consider that in offering this attraction they were offering their patrons the limit, but this does not hold with the Tabb, for the management, not being satisfied with being able to present this stellar feature alone, has booked the greatest historical picture ever made, "Deception."

In looking over the past season we fully realize that the patronage given previous shows does not warrant Mr. Small's trying to give the Tabb patrons this exceptional big double program at this time. The Advocate feels that a theatre such as the Tabb is an asset to our town and realizes as must its readers that if Mt. Sterling is to have such and is to have an opportunity of seeing some of the better road shows and special feature photoplays, future patronage given attractions of this kind must be in keeping with its offerings.

Earl Fuller, "The Man From Rector's," who became famous as the first orchestra leader who introduced to a jaded Broadway public in Rector's, the Moulin Rouge and the Palais Royale, the siren and tempting strains and melodious syncopation of jazz music, will appear with his highly specialized musicians and the greatest exponent of blue songs at the Tabb Theatre Monday night.

Mr. Fuller is on a world tour with his justly famous organization and is just returning north after a "jazzy" triumphal appearance with his band throughout the principal cities of the south.

Mr. Fuller has as his soloist Miss Vi Shaffer, "The Prima Donna of Syncopation," and she has taken every audience by storm with her remarkable rendition of "blues" numbers.

A WONDER

A professional was in the jewelry store room of Fred J. Heintz, 123 East Main street, Lexington, and among other valuables his attention was called to real imported cameo pins, hand carved by master artists. Rich, rare and valuable were these cameo pins. Mr. Heintz's attention was attracted by the stranger's mannerism and, approach, Mr. Heintz addressed him as follows: "Something you wish?" The answer was, "I am just admiring those cameo pins. May I see a tray of them?" At once these beautiful valuables were before him and the stranger went into ecstasies. "Will you please give me the price?" At this juncture Mr. Heintz said, "You seem to know these goods and their values. That large hand carved cameo you may guess the price of." The stranger answered, "$30," and Mr. Heintz smilingly said, "Turn the card and you will see the price." "What?" said the stranger, "$8?" "Yes," said Mr. Heintz, "$8, and set in solid gold. These goods were made to sell at the prices you name, but the makers were hard pressed for money and I got a large shipment at a price. They are going fast and I hope to have more, but can't promise."

HOMEY PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922

When the six cylinder's only hittin' on four we're good and sore. Up goes the hood and the old wrench and pliers are dragged out. Soon she's buzzing along again an' we settle back happy. If the old wagon happens to be an eight or a twin six, we'd throw a fit if every cylinder did not fire. How many of our own cylinders are missing every day? Even the slowest of us, the low-gear boys, have quite a few not firing and they're trying to get the old boat up hill under all sorts of handicaps when a little examination an' overhaulin' would shoot us up on high.

McCormick Gives Paris House to Ganna Walska

Harold F. McCormick, heir to the International Harvester Company's millions, again appears in the limelight, having given a beautiful Paris residence to Mme. Ganna Walska Cochran, vaudeville singer, twice widowed before she wed Cochran, and now separated from her husband. McCormick bought the house from Cochran, who obtained it from James Gordon Bennett. The gift of the mansion to the wife, coupled with the separation, has given rise to a report that McCormick and the singer are to be married when divorce arrangements are completed, but this is denied.

NEW ENGLAND IN REVOLT AGAINST INCOMPETENCE

Concerning the recent Democratic gains in New England, the Boston Transcript, among the oldest and ablest of the leading Republican papers of New England, says:

"A Washington correspondent confesses that the Democratic gains in the recent New England municipal elections are giving considerable concern to the so-called leaders of the G. O. P. We say so-called because the Republican party today is a house divided against itself; it is woefully wanting in leadership at either end of Pennsylvania avenue. And the drift of our New England cities away from the party in power is due in no small measure to the popular dissatisfaction among the plain people with the failure of the Republicans to raise up at Washington a leadership worthy of the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt.

"A strong leader in the White House might have been able to bring his party to a sense of party sponsorship. Whether Mr. Harding is unable to supply strong leadership, or whether he is awaiting 'the psychological moment,' is still a matter of popular debate. But the popularity of the administration is on the wane. The ringleaders of the Republican house, however, boast that Mr. Harding's easy-going acquiescence to date in their trespassing upon his prerogatives suits them. No doubt it does, but it does not meet the hope of thousands of Republicans and Democrats who voted the Republican ticket at the last national election.

"New Englanders may be more Republican than they are Democratic, but they have both the intelligence and the courage to vote against their party when their party ceases to serve the nation or to keep its campaign pledges."

OUR COMPANIONSHIP WITH CHILDREN

Too much cannot be said concerning a real companionship between parents and children. I emphasize the "real." Those fathers and mothers who have practiced companionship through their children's unfolding years seem almost to hold them in the hollow of their hands. Those fortunate young people simply do not want to do the things which would grieve or distress the ones they love best, and in addition are so well equipped with vital interest in the better and finer aspects of life that the less desirable makes no effectual appeal. I have seen this happen over and over again, and one mother of five splendid children said it was as certain as that two and two made four. Given this real companionship by their parents and a mutual sharing of the best things in home, books, music, art, nature and humanity during eighteen or more plastic years and children are bound to turn out well.

This sort of companionship is no casual or haphazard thing. The parents who realize its value and mean to have it at any price are willing to play, really play, with their babies, to keep on playing with the little ones, to give hours of time to older ones, and to live on such friendly terms with their children from the beginning that spontaneity, originality, initiative and enthusiasm are never repressed. Tender love, real living sympathy with the child's point of view, active participation in whatever interests him, doing things together, these are the precious secrets of those parents whose children when grown are still their dearest friends.

It is from the first a question of being willing to pay the price. When one sees on every hand boys and girls whose friends and interests are all outside of home, who seem entirely at liberty to choose their own occupation and amusements and inclined to select those which are not only questionable but often desperately dangerous, and contrasts them with those others of whom we have been speaking, one is forced to conclude that many parents have purchased self-indulgence for themselves at a terrible cost. "Where are these parents? What are they thinking of?" How often do we hear this said today as we gaze upon the girls and boys who are on the street, in the restaurants, at the shows, in the automobiles; as we read the horrors in our daily papers, as we listen to tales of disgrace and disaster.

It does not matter much where they are now. It is too late. Their great chance is gone for good and all. But years ago these parents were spending hours upon themselves which should have been passed upon in companionship with their children. What would they not give now for that companionship and the influence which can be bought only at that price!

But, oh, you fathers and mothers of little children, don't let your opportunity slip! Now is your great chance! Fill the golden hours of your children's early years with all sorts of work, play, projects, excursions, reading and study together. Live with your children. It was long ago that Froebel cried, "Come, let us live with our children!" and never was his reason for so doing so clear to our minds as in these later days. Do not say that you are too busy, or that the labor providing food and shelter for them prevents. Let them share, according to their years, in the family work, the family responsibilities and even the family income. Remember that companionship is participation. You can make work a frolic or an unwelcome drudgery to them; it is for you to choose. All depends on the spirit in which the necessary things are done. Even be thankful that your means are restricted, for then your problem will be a simpler one than if you had all the money you wish you had. Necessity is an able assistant to any sort of teacher, and besides it is you the children want rather than the things you think you would like to give to them.—Katherine Beebe.

FARM AND HOME NEWS FROM OVER KENTUCKY

Many points relative to soil building and crop rotation are expected to be brought out in Meade county by two demonstrations being conducted by farmers who are co-operating with the College of Agriculture extension division and County Agent B. B. McInteer, it is said. One former will use a four-year rotation and the other a five-year one. Both demonstrations involve 75 acres.

The movement to standardize Washington county poultry flocks with one breed was carried to many farms of the county during the past spring with the distribution of 784 settings of purebred hatching eggs by the county Barred Plymouth Rock association, County Agent Heath reports. The eggs will be paid for in the fall by the return of one pullet for each setting of eggs. Approximately 800 other settings of eggs from the same breed were sold directly for $1 each.

Further steps to eradicate the scrub breeding cattle of the county recently were taken by Oldham county farmers when five of them purchased purebred sires at the purebred sale held at Louisville, County Agent G. B. Nance says.

After realizing more than $15,000 on cucumbers raised as a side line last year, farmers in the McQuady community of Breckinridge county are planning to continue the project this year, County Agent R. M. Greene says. About 200 acres of cucumbers will be planted. Farmers in the same community also will plant about fifteen acres of cabbage as an additional cash crop project.

Blue Grass Seed Crop Very Large

According to figures secured from the blue grass seed dealers and growers, the crop this year is the largest that there has been since the year 1912, when the largest amount of seed was gathered in the history of the seed business.

The prices being offered for seed vary. In some sections the dealers are offering a price of $1.80 per bushel for the cured seed, while no price so far is obtainable for seed from the stripper.

The stripping, according to farmers, will begin between the first and the eighth of June, according to the weather. Large tracts have already been disposed of for money consideration in this and adjoining counties, while a number of the county farmers have made arrangements for the seed to be stripped on the shares.

A grand rush is being made for available strippers in this county and all strippers available will be pressed into use, with the old-time strippers and all available self-raking strippers already spoken for.

With the amount for money that will be realized from the second payment of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association to the growers and the prospects of a good sum of money being realized from the blue grass seed, the farmers, it is predicted, will be in better condition financially than they have been for the past few years.

LITTLE CHILD; SMALL BASKET

Representative Wingo, Democrat, Texas, was discussing the bill to regulate the size of baskets and hampers in which the farmer must ship his products, when Representative Herrick, Republican, Oklahoma, inventor of Herrick's Giant yellow corn and Copper-faced Hereford cattle, brought in the following colloquy:

Mr. Herrick: How large a basket would be required to put in it all the good that this congress has done for the common people, and how old would a child have to be in order to be able to carry the basket? (Laughter.)

Mr. Wingo: Mr. Chairman, I can appreciate the inquisitive mind of the gentleman from Oklahoma, a representative of the republican party upon this floor, overwhelming elected by a great constituency against a distinguished Democrat, and one of the leaders on that side. He is not deceived by the song sung every few days by the Republican leader (Mr. Mondell) and I have been expecting the gentleman from Wyoming (Mr. Mondell) before we adjourn to today to expatiate on the wonderful harmony between the Republican organization in this house and the chief executive. (Laughter.) I can understand how the gentleman from Wyoming will answer the question of the gentleman from Oklahoma. I am not going to answer it; but you go to your constituents in November and answer that question. That is what they are going to ask you and every other Republican concerning your legislation. (Applause and laughter.)

WHAT'S THE COMBINATION?

Harry Sinclair set out in the oil business as an independent operator when the great mid-continent oil field was in its infancy as to production. Among the independents he was a pronounced success. He carried his interlocking companies to Wall street, where after a time of cooling his heels in the out offices of big business, he was admitted and let in.

Now it appears he is well within—so far in that some of his companies are not without their federated interests with the Standard Oil Company or more ancient fame.

Sinclair was recently reported as having come close to a corner on all the available oil land in the world. And among the available lands he was fortunate enough to find ways and means to lease the federal oil lands reserved for sources of naval supply.

Now Senator LaFollette, who is just as apt to be right as wrong, demands a federal investigation into naval oil fields, and why these oil deposits are subjected to being greatly depleted by the Sinclair exploitations.

What is an independent oil operator? When does an independent become a combine and the benefactor of special grants and privileges? These are questions that the "independents" such as Sinclair once was are asking. Moreover, they want to know if Harry Sinclair and his companies are still of the "independent" class, how it is that he is privileged to get on, or at least next to government oil lands which carry the "keep off the grass" signs for them.

What's the combination that gets into this federal vault of fluid gold?

CONTROL OF WEEDS BIG NEED FOR CULTIVATION

Corn cultivation that destroys the weeds most effectively is best, regardless of how deep it goes or how often it is practiced, according to results of the experiments conducted for ten years at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. Moisture conservation, once considered a chief reason for cultivation, is secondary in importance as long as the weeds are kept down, the tests showed, it is said.

To determine the need for cultivation, the weeds on one plot were kept down by being scraped off with a sharp hoe. Despite the fact that no other cultivation was given, this plot yielded 52.9 bushels of corn an acre, as an average for ten years, or only three bushels less than the cultivated areas. However, this method of weed control was not considered practical, because of the labor and expense involved.

Over the ten-year period, the average yields for shallow and deep cultivation practiced six to eight times during the growing season have been 55.5 and 56.2 bushels, respectively, while the average yields for shallow and deep cultivation practiced three to four times during the season have been 55.8 and 56.1 bushels, respectively.

"Observations on the Lexington field show that cultivation conserves moisture if drouths begin when the corn is small," R. E. Stephenson, soils specialist of the station, said in discussing the results. "However, after the corn is well started and is about knee-high, the feeding roots are able to take up most of the moisture that the crop can utilize before it has a chance to evaporate from the surface, even though there is no cultivation other than scraping the weeds.

"The outstanding thing brought out by the experiments is not the fact that cultivation is not needed, but that it should be given at such time and in such manner as to most effectively destroy weeds."

SOYBEANS IN CORN KEEP DOWN CHINCHBUG TROUBLE

In addition to forming a good combination for the economical production of pork, soybeans and corn grown together have another advantage which is being pointed out to Kentucky farmers by crop specialists at the College of Agriculture. When grown together, these two crops help to control chinchbugs, which in some years become a serious menace to the corn crop, they declare.

Soybeans grown in the row with corn help make the field shady, thus discouraging the activities of the bug which prefers an open growth. Natural enemies of the chinchbug also like the large amount of moisture held by the damp bean leaves. In addition to these two points, the bugs do not feed upon the soybeans, the specialists say.

Gold is in the ground for all who have learned the fine art of digging.

ALAS, POOR MEAT PACKERS!

While the meat packers are groaning their complaints of poor business to the public, lamb chops are costing the people 80 cents a pound. Why cannot the government make a real investigation, stripped of all whole-sale economic and bewildering theories, and let the people know why the housewife is robbed and who gets the money? If the farmers got extortionate profit, the news would be shouted from the housetops, and the retailers could not long remain in business in the light of outrageous gouging. If the packers are not getting it, then their skirts should be cleared, because, frankly, the people believe the meat trust and the meat trust only is to blame.

When the cow was simply carved into meat and the rest thrown away, meat could be had at reasonable prices, but as soon as the by-products were developed, as soon as more money was made out of the horns and the hide and the rest of the trimmings, the price of meat, instead of falling, began to rise and it has gone up ever since. When the supply was excessive, business was poor, meat was a drug on the market, and so "profitable prices simply had to be charged." When a supposed shortage struck the country, then prices leaped by reason of the law of supply and demand. Surely it is time all of this jugglery was stopped and a few plain understandable facts were put before the people. The meat trust should be fairly dealt with. At present it is regarded as the most impudent of business malefactors, and it is only fair that the truth should be smoked out.
